

TEN BALLOTS
NO ELECTION

The City Council Failed to Select J. S. Mills' Successor Thursday Evening.

FIVE MEN WERE NOMINATED

No Candidate Received More Than Two Votes.—Another Meeting Tonight.

The special meeting of the city council held Thursday evening for the election of a successor to Councilman J. S. Mills, who recently resigned, did not result in the selection of any one to fill the vacancy.

Ten ballots were taken but no candidate received a majority and no ballot resulted in the tie vote necessary to give Mayor Swope a chance to settle the question.

Quite a large number of citizens attended the meeting, being anxious to learn the name of the patriot who is to fill the vacant chair in the council.

As soon as Mayor Swope had announced the purpose of the meeting, Councilman Taskey arose and placed William Buse in nomination and Councilman Misch followed by nominating Chris. Moritz. Both of these candidates are Democrats. Each of the three Republicans then presented the name of a candidate. W. R. Day nominated Robt. W. Irwin, Councilman Hodapp nominated Charles Murphy and Sherman Day named Fred Everback. The action of the Republicans indicated that the Republican members had not arranged to allow the Democrats to dictate Mills' successor.

On the first ballot Buse, Murphy, Irwin and Everback received one vote each while Moritz received two, Davison voting with Misch for him.

There was no change on the second and third ballots. On the fourth Irwin was dropped and Everback received two votes. The fifth resulted the same as the first. On the sixth, Irwin's vote went to Murphy, giving him two. On the seventh, the result was again the same as the first but on the eighth one of the Republicans voted for Buse, giving him two. On the ninth, the votes again went back to the old order and on the tenth, Murphy again had two. On each ballot Moritz had his two votes.

After the tenth ballot Councilman Davison stated that it was evident that neither the Democrats nor Republicans were able to agree on a candidate and that he believed it would be advisable to postpone further voting until the members could consult and see if there was any chance of reaching an agreement. On his motion the meeting adjourned until 7:30 Friday evening when voting will be resumed.

The meeting Thursday evening resulted as had been predicted by many. For several days strenuous efforts had been made by Democratic leaders to induce Taskey to drop Buse and vote for Moritz, it being hoped that some Republican would fall in line or that the Republicans would unite on some man and thus give the Mayor a chance to cast a deciding vote.

Had the Democrats been able to unite, it is evident from last night's voting that Moritz would not have been elected.

It is reported that some new names may be presented tonight, but there are plenty of predictions that the voting will again result in there being no election. Indeed there is a possibility of an indefinite deadlock.

Following the adjournment of the first session Thursday evening the council again convened, it being the date set to hear remonstrances from property owners regarding the proposed improvement of north Poplar street. There being no remonstrances, final action was taken in the passage of a resolution confirming the original resolution for the improvement.

Surprise.

Thursday was the fourteenth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eckstein. Last night about thirty of their friends and neighbors came to their home at 417 east Second street, to help them celebrate, and completely surprised them. The evening was spent in a social way and later the guests served refreshments, which they had brought with them. Mr. and Mrs. Eckstein were presented with a beautiful piece of cut glass as a token of remembrance.

Married at Louisville.

Emmett Ervin, a young business man of Indianapolis, and Miss Irma Downing, of this city, were married Tuesday, May 2, at Louisville. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Downing. They will reside in Indianapolis.

Suing For Divorce.

Mary E. Allman has filed suit in the circuit court for a divorce from Logan Allman. She charges cruel and inhuman treatment and failure to provide. The parties live in the southwest part of Seymour.

Two girls narrowly escaped being killed at the B. & O. S-W. crossing on Chestnut street last night. An engine and cut of cars standing at the crossing started suddenly and the girls, seeing their danger, became excited but managed to fall back from the track just in time to escape being run over.

Several narrow escapes at this crossing at night have been reported lately. Since the new switch across the street was put in the danger has been increased as there is no watchman there at night.

Lafe Heiman who has been sick the past five weeks, is improving. He is able to walk about the house and hopes to drive down town in a few days.

STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Nephew of Mrs. J. A. Willey Killed at Sellersburg.

Millard Zimmerman, an eighteen year old boy and a nephew of Mrs. J. A. Willey, of Seymour, died at Sellersburg early this morning as the result of being struck by a Pennsylvania train Thursday evening. He is a baker and at the time of the accident was driving a bread wagon. In crossing the Pennsylvania tracks he failed to see an approaching south bound train and his wagon was struck squarely by the train. The wagon was thrown some distance and completely wrecked. The young man was badly cut and was rendered unconscious, remaining so until his death.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Zimmerman who resided in this city for a number of years and have many acquaintances here.

Mr. and Mrs. Willey and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gudgel will go to Sellersburg Saturday morning to attend the funeral.

Another Joker.

It is claimed another joker has been found in the New Liquor law.

Counties in the state, whose commissioners have passed a resolution permitting only one saloon to 1,000 inhabitants, can have one for each 500 according to a contention of Attorney Roose of New Albany. The error claimed by Attorney Roose occurs in the section of the law which reads as follows:

"Provided that the number of retail licenses which may be granted in any city or township under this act shall not be more than one for each five hundred inhabitants thereof, which number may be further limited by the board of county commissioners of any county to any number not LESS than one to each one thousand inhabitants of such city or township."

Attorney Roose holds that the use of the word "less" instead of "more" in the last part of the section kills the effect of the law so far as limiting the saloons to 1,000 inhabitants is concerned.

Many of the fishermen have returned from the river recently with reports that there are no fish in the river. Just to prove that there are plenty of fish in the stream and that the only thing necessary is to know how to get them, Fred Downs and Andrew Phillips, B. & O. engineers went out to Bells Ford Thursday. They have the reputation of knowing about all there is to know about this fishing business, and their return was therefore anxiously awaited by the fishermen among the railroad employees. Downs and Phillips stayed all day and all night and this morning they sent in word for Curtis Downs to bring the wagon out and haul in the catch. The two anglers had lived up to their reputation and had caught a long string of fine ones, all the law would permit, in fact.

Thomas M. Honan, attorney-general, returned to the state board of accounts the reports of field examiners in about seventy-five cases which were certified to him for the purpose of bringing suit against officials and former officials held to be delinquent. The return was at the request of the Governor, a member of the board of accounts. The cases will be tried under the amended uniform accounting law, which provides for attempts at settlements with the state board of accounts before the filing of suits.

EXHIBITION DAY AND MOTHERS' DAY

Will Probably Both Be Observed in the Seymour Schools on Friday, May 19th.

PROGRAM BEING ARRANGED

Parents Will Be Invited to Visit the Schools and See the Exhibits of Work.

Sunday, May 14, will be observed internationally as "Mother's Day," the purpose being to honor the mothers. A white carnation and the national colors have been designated as badges.

State superintendent Greathouse has issued a proclamation requesting the teachers and school officials to observe the Friday preceding, in the public schools, as "Mother's Day."

As Friday, May 19th had been designated as exhibition day in the Seymour schools there will probably be no separate observance of "Mother's Day" but the two celebrations will be combined.

The parents of the city are to be invited to visit the schools the 19th and see the work being done. Short special programs will be arranged for the different rooms or buildings. The programs will probably include some special and appropriate features in recognition of "Mother's Day."

Supt. Greathouse in his proclamation said: "Every tender sentiment that leads to noble action should be nurtured carefully in a nation accus-ed of commercialism. Each boy and girl should be admonished to make this day so full of love and joy for 'mother' that she can never forget it and to make it so overflowing with unselfish deeds and practical helpfulness, that other mothers, bereft, ill or unfortunate, may have a share in the abundant joy. Instill in the minds of the boys and girls of the land that on this day, at least, motherhood sits enthroned, and the wise and the good of all lands bow before her throne to do her reverence and to acknowledge their obligations. On no day should the nation's flag float out more triumphantly than on Mother's Day, when 'mother' comes into her own."

"Let teachers strive faithfully to direct the beautiful sentiment and ideals of the day into wholesome and practical channels. Lead the boys and girls to realize that mother's honor and happiness will be in proportion to their own worth and achievements, beginning with the record for the day and ending in chivalrous respect and gentle consideration for all womankind."

County Fair Dates.

The county fair and racing dates have nearly all been arranged for the state. Some of the dates of interest here are: North Vernon, July 25-28; Osgood, Aug. 14-19; Scottsburg, Aug. 22-25; Franklin, Aug. 23-25; Shelbyville, Aug. 29-Sept 2; Salem Sept. 5-8; Vincennes, Sept. 12-16. The dates for the Crothersville fair have not been announced.

NEXT YEAR.

Jackson County Voters Will Have to Register.

Next year the voters of Jackson county and every other county in Indiana will have to register if they enjoy the privilege of voting in November. The registration law was enacted by the last legislature but not many people in this vicinity seem to be aware that such a law was passed.

One of the first provisions of the law is that the changing of any precinct boundary lines must be done at the March session of the Board of Commissioners, instead of the June session, as is now the law.

Under the provisions of the law, each precinct is given a registration inspector, who is appointed by the commissioners, this appointment being made at the April session of the board of any year when the election is to be held in November following. Two registration clerks are also appointed, their appointment being recommended by the chairman of the two political parties casting the highest number of votes at the preceding general election.

These recommendations are made to the precinct inspector, and the latter individual appoints the clerks so recommended. Blanks and a registration book are furnished by the county auditor. The first registration day is in May, the 180th day preceding such general election. The second registration is in September, the sixtieth day before the election, and the third and last registration comes in October, twenty-one days before the election.

Notice by publication is given by the auditor of the days and places for such registration, and should you fail to register it is a bar from voting. That being true, it will cause the party managers to get busy and see that their vote is cast on the registration days. The expenses of the registration is paid out of the county treasury, the same as other election expenses are paid.

SMALL DAMAGES

Awarded Richard Derringer in Suit Against Interurban.

The $5,000 damage suit of Richard Derringer, of Crothersville, against I. & L. Traction Company, which was heard at Columbus Thursday, resulted in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. A heavy cut however was made in the amount demanded, the jury awarding him only $300.

Derringer was hurt last fall at Crothersville. He charged that he was thrown from a car by the latter starting before he was safely on the platform. He first filed the case in Jackson county. Later it was venued to Scott county and finally to Bartholomew.

The jury was out three hours Thursday before returning a verdict.

Commencement.

The commencement exercises of the graduating class of the Brownstown high school will be held this evening in the opera house. Prof. Francis M. When "Sign is Right."

Many farmers and gardeners would almost as soon think of planting their truck in the midst of winter as of planting it when the "sign was wrong." The impression that the moon does have a very direct and consequential effect on vegetation is so widely diffused, and so firmly established that whoever, in a spirit of iconoclasm, sets forth to explain it away or to laugh it down is likely to meet with more testimony in favor of the belief than he can overcome. This testimony however usually consist of a statement of three words, "I've tried it", and there the discussion must stop. In every community there are men, who are ready to say from actual experience that both the change of the moon and the zodiac signs have an indisputable influence upon plant life and animal life, and that farmer or stock breeder who disregards it simply robs himself.

It is of interest to note that despite this popular belief, all the experiment stations in the United States, and there is at last one in every state, whenever they have mentioned this long established belief, have stated emphatically and quite without hesitation, that it was groundless. Several of these institutions have carried out exhaustive tests and experiments to ascertain whether or not there was anything in either the moon or the zodiac signs and they one and all affirm that the belief is one of the rather rare instances in which a popular and long cherished idea is wholly false.

Not Admitted.

Following the issuance of the order by Judge Shea that Jessie Sloan be committed to the Indiana reform school for girls near Indianapolis, Marshal Abell took her to the school Thursday. For some reason the officers of the institution declined to admit her to the school at present. The marshal was compelled to bring her back to Seymour, where she was again placed in jail. Judge Shea is making an investigation of the matter before taking further action in the case.

HELD TRAIN

For Physician Who Was Half a Mile From Station.

The conductors on the Southeastern are accommodating men. The Bedford Democrat says:

Dr. J. B. Duncan, who was called to Jackson county, near Cortland, Wednesday afternoon, had a somewhat unusual experience in catching the train to return home at night. His call was five miles from Cortland and he did not have any too much time between trains. He got the son of the Cortland postmaster to drive him to the place he was going, impressing upon him the necessity of his getting back in time for the return train, as missing it would mean that he could not get home until morning. When nearly half a mile away from the station on the return they saw the train pull in. Lashing the horse into a gallop they made a dash to get to the train and the postmaster seeing them prevailed on the conductor to wait for them, which he did, holding the train for about three minutes, but came into Bedford on time.

Married.

A marriage which has been expected for some time by friends of the young couple, though the date was kept secret, took place in the Westminster Presbyterian church at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The bride was Miss Maud M. Winterbottom and the groom, Ray A. Stone. Both are members of prominent and wellknown families of Washington and the marriage, which is the culmination of a friendship of long standing, was simple and unostentatious. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. P. Hoskin, pastor of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Stone left later for a bridal trip to Chicago. Upon their return they will be at home to friends at 10 Harned avenue where Mr. Stone has bought and furnished a home. The bride is the youngest daughter of Thomas E. Winterbottom, a prominent coal operator and is an accomplished and attractive young woman. Mr. Stone is a prominent young jeweler of the city and is employed at the N. H. Jepson Jewelry store.—Washington Herald.

The bride is wellknown in Seymour, having visited Miss Elsie Reynolds quite frequently. Mr. and Mrs. Stone passed through here Thursday on their wedding trip and will return Sunday and will be the guests of Miss Reynolds.

Kitchen Shower.

In honor of her approaching wedding, Miss Laura Heckman, was given a kitchen shower Thursday evening at the home of Miss Elma and Erma Heuser, on North Walnut street.

The affair was cleverly planned and was a complete surprise for Miss Heckman. The decorations were pink hearts and were very pretty. The refreshments consisted of brick cream and cake of heart shaped designs. Seventeen young women were present to enjoy the evening which was spent in games and music.

Miss Heckman will be married to Erbie Hoffmeier in the early summer.

Started From Seymour.

The Versailles Republican says: Wilbur Stockman was a caller Tuesday. Wilbur recently started from Seymour and rode for thirty-six hours over 700 miles of traction lines touching 72 counties of the state with view to finding a location. He says that a part of Johnson county was the only place that looked as good to him as Ripley county and that land there was selling for $300 per acre. In no place that he inspected, did wheat look as well as it does along the B. & O. between Milan and Osgood. Wilbur came back to Ripley and bought 38 acres, joining right up to the village of Pierceville, paying a fraction over $50 an acre for the same.

Received Exemption License.

Kathryne Short of this county, has been granted an exemption license by the state superintendent and will not be required to be examined again for license covering the subjects named in the license as long as she continues teaching. She was one of the thirty-six teachers to whom exemption licenses have recently been issued under the new law by Supt. Greathouse.

Sunday Closing.

Complying with instructions given by the Postoffice Department, and published in this paper last Tuesday, the Seymour postoffice will be closed on Sundays in the future. The lobby will be open until ten o'clock Sunday forenoon, so that those patrons who have boxes can get their mail as usual. Special delivery letters will be delivered by messenger as on other days of the week.

Mrs. Martin Phelan, Jr. of Chicago, came Thursday evening for an extended visit with Mrs. Martin Phelan Sr. and family.

INDICTMENTS ARE DUE TODAY

McManigal Tells His Story Before the Grand Jury.

CASE AGAINST THE McNAMARAS

The State is Now Prepared, It is Said, to Present the Secretary of the National Iron Workers' Union and His Brother Jim on Charges of Murder and Conspiracy, the Indictments Probably to Be Returned Today.

Los Angeles, May 5.—Ortie McManigal, appearing before the county grand jury late yesterday afternoon, told its members the story of the dynamiting plots in which he says he participated with J. B. McNamara, and of which he asserts John J. McNamara had guilty knowledge. The session of the jury prefaced the returns of more indictments against the McNamaras. These indictments probably will be returned today and the arraignment of the prisoners will follow. Whether these new indictments are necessitated by defects in the original cases, or for some other reason is not known.

Five persons were brought from San Francisco and went to the jail for the purpose of determining whether James B. McNamara is the man they knew in that city as J. B. Bryce. These witnesses were Paul Stupperich, his wife and two daughters, and Harold Burrows. The Stupperichs conducted a hotel at Sausalito, across the bay from San Francisco, where Bryce and his companions stopped for a short time while preparing to move the dynamite they bought at Giant. It is charged at Sausalito that they tied up the launch Pastime, repainted it and changed the name to Peerless Burrows owned the launch. While neither the witnesses nor the district attorney will discuss the visit to the jail, the rumors about that institution are that J. B. McNamara was recognized as the man who passed for Bryce.

The indictments to be returned today will charge murder, according to the district attorney. It is believed the McNamaras will be indicted on at least nineteen counts for murder, one for each death resulting directly from the Times explosion; that another count will charge the three prisoners with conspiracy to dynamite the Llewellyn Iron works, and that the McNamaras will also be indicted for conspiracy to dynamite the Times building. If the men had been arraigned on the charges on which they were extradited the defense would have been entitled to a transcript of the evidence taken before the grand jury. When the prisoners are arraigned the prosecution will have to produce only such evidence as was offered yesterday, on which today's indictments will be based. Thus the district attorney will be able to keep much of his evidence from the defense until the trial. Attorneys for the McNamaras say that the defense is ready for arraignment.

NOGALES BESIEGED

Joan of Arc of Mexico Leading the Insurrecto Band.

Tucson, Ariz., May 5.—P. Sandoval, president of Nogales, Sonora, received a message from a rebel courier ordering him to surrender Nogales or send the women and children to places of safety.

Mrs. Talamantes, Joan of Arc of Mexico, with 500 Pima Indians, and Juan Cabral's command numbering over 1,000 men, are now marching from the east toward Nogales. The federals have two machine guns stationed on hills overlooking the city and have military headquarters and the custom house mined to repel attack. A detachment of federals left Nogales, marching south to meet a band of insurgents said to be approaching from that direction. The insurgents declare their intention to attack Nogales from three sides and to use nitroglycerine bombs.

They Feel Encouraged.

El Paso, Tex., May 5.—At the conclusion of the first day's session of the peace conference both the Mexican and insurrecto commanders insisted that progress was being made. The nearest they would come to telling anything, however, was to say that it looked as if a peace agreement would be reached within three days.

HERE'S A NEW JOB FOR GOVERNOR OF KANSAS

Woman Mayor of Hunnewell Appeals for Help.

Topeka, Kan., May 5.—In the affairs of the city of Hunnewell, the only city in Kansas that has a woman mayor, Governor Stubbs and the attorney general may take a hand. Mrs. Alice Hilton, city clerk, and Mrs. Rosa Mosborn, city marshal, have appealed to the governor to oust the members of the city council because they are not acting properly, and they also ask for help in suppressing the liquor traffic in the town.

Mrs. Ella Wilson, the mayor, did not join in the request, although she is vitally interested. Mrs. Wilson called a meeting of the council for a vacant store room. The mayor, city clerk, Mrs. Hilton, and the marshal attended the meeting. While the three city officials were waiting for the rest of the council a note arrived from the five councilmen asking for the city's books. The five men were holding a council meeting in a hotel room without the mayor. The council allowed various city bills and transacted other business.

The women would like to know if this proceeding is legal and if the councilmen should not be ousted for improper action in office. Also those five men did not show proper respect to the mayor.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Sixty-five persons were sentenced to death in Russia during the first three months of 1911.

President Taft addressed the Philadelphia Medical club at its triennial banquet last night.

Ex-United States Senator Kittridge of South Dakota is dead after an illness of more than three months.

An explosion in the National Fireworks company's plant at Belleville, N. J., killed three people and destroyed the whole plant, with $15,000 damage.

A special commission has been appointed to investigate the alleged burglary and sacrilege committed by English archaeologists at the mosque of Omar.

The construction of the steel coffer dam for removing the wreck of the Maine has been completed and the work of pumping it out will begin May 25.

The United States Steel corporation has closed a deal for the Risdon Iron works at San Francisco, a half mile of water front and fourteen blocks adjoining, for $2,500,000.

Word has just come from London of the illness of Lady Decies, who was Miss Vivien Gould, from appendicitis. The report states that an operation may be necessary to save her life.

There has been a sharp recurrence of the criticism in Berlin newspapers with regard to France's continued advance in Morocco, the press declaring that France has been violating the Algeciras treaty.

British government statistics show that 32,457 natives of Ireland emigrated from that country last year. Since the year 1851, when the compilation of these statistics was begun, the emigration from Ireland has been 4,187,443.

WOMAN'S GARDEN

Affords Her Delightful Outdoor Recreation.

PLOT MAY BE ANY SIZE.

Whether She Plants Flowers or Vegetables, Good Common Sense and Unremitting Diligence Are the Price of Satisfactory Crops.

Now is the time that the woman's garden needs its most painstaking attention, for the beginning of the garden is the secret of its success. Early spring operations may be devoted to the preparation of the soil, the planning of the garden scheme, the selection of seed or bulbs, the pruning of vines or shrubbery, etc. The appearance of a house is much improved by careful attention to the condition of the grounds and the lawns should be given careful attention. Some plants may be started in small boxes in the house and set out as the season advances. No matter how small may be the available space, something can be done with it. Nowadays we have vegetable gardens on city lots. The cost of the tools is very small. The amateur woman gardener needs only a fork and spade for digging, a rake and a hoe, a trowel and weeder, a pruning knife, a watering can and for the lawn a light mower. Every hour spent in the garden is so much in favor of health and beauty. With a sunbonnet, a big gardening apron and a pair of gardening gloves which may be nothing more than an old pair of street gloves from which the ends of the fingers have been cut, the garden work may be accomplished with neatness and comfort.

Roses, one of the earliest of the garden's beauties, are especially woman's flower. Preliminary work on the rose garden may be done in the way of pruning cutting supports and tying up the shoots where necessary. Indoor work may include the fashioning of convenient shades, the umbrella-like paper shade shown in the picture being an excellent protection from the sun, and if of heavy glazed paper also useful in keeping off too heavy rains. The shades are rested on slender supports of wood. The making of gardening conveniences of this sort may be made rainy day tasks.

Gardening on a city lot is not so easy as on fallow country soil. By care in the selection of the kind of seed, good results may be obtained.

Among profitable crops will be the round red radishes, which should be sown not more than a row fifteen feet long at one time or there will be more than can well be disposed of.

The loose leaf lettuce, notably the Hanson variety, does well. Make sowings a month apart to obtain succession. Tomatoes are profitable next in order. Set out tomato plants if it is possible to get them. They may be easily raised in a hot bed. Prune them when a good crop is set so they will ripen.

Beets are next best for the city lot. Instead of eating all the greens which you get by thinning the rows when they are two or three inches high, transplant part of them where radishes grew, but cut off most of the top first or they will not survive.

Wax beans are good, especially the kidney wax. They will outyield all the others and may be planted again and again until six weeks before the frost is due. Sow the early varieties of sweet corn, but be sure to have a patch big enough for the grains to be pollinated. If the soil has been worked a year or two before, cabbage may be raised. Parsnips, carrots and vegetable oyster may be raised for the winter.

Sandwich of Caviar.

The real Russian caviar is the best. Cut moist bread in slices rather thin and dress with butter, a little cream cheese and a coating of Russian caviar. Serve the sandwiches in small shapes, for they are intended as a relish or appetizer and not to serve as a course.

Restoring Black Marble.

When a black marble clock becomes dull and smeared looking try rubbing it over with olive oil and afterward rub well with a soft duster. This quite restores the polish.

MOSES E. CLAPP

Progressives Favor Him For President Pro Tem of Senate.

GALLINGER MAY NOT GET COVETED HONOR

Insurgents Put Forward the Claims of Clapp.

Washington, May 5.—The progressives have decided to make it a three-cornered fight for president pro tem. of the senate, the office just vacated by Senator Frye. They probably will put forward one of their own number, Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, for the office.

Senator Gallinger is the general choice of the regular Republicans, but he is not satisfactory to the insurgents, who declare they have ten votes, enough to prevent Gallinger's election.

The Democratic vote probably will go to Senator Bacon.

TREASURE TROVE

Buried Wealth of an Indianapolis Man Brought to Light.

Indianapolis, May 5.—Wilkinson Tout, a wealthy man, died several days ago, and relatives failed to find a will. Yesterday in searching for the will the administrator went to the basement and noticed that some bricks had been removed from the wall. Further search revealed a gallon stone jar buried in the ground. It contained about $5,000 in securities. Tout was known to have had a large sum of cash, and it is supposed to be buried somewhere about the house.

Hold Trio as Yeggmen.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 5.—The Terre Haute police are holding George Scott, J. Jennings and George Meno on suspicion, and are trying to connect them with a number of robberies in small surrounding towns.

River Holds Body.

Evansville, Ind., May 5.—The body of Robert Ferguson, assistant general manager of the Evansville Gas and Electric Light company, who was drowned in the Ohio river, has not been recovered.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

The primary cause of Rheumatism results from weak kidneys, constipation, indigestion, etc., forming impure accumulations in the system. These sour and ferment, causing uric acid, which is absorbed from the stomach and intestines into the blood. This changes the circulation from a thick, rich fluid to a thin, acid stream, depositing inflammatory matter into the muscles, nerves, and joints. The longer the blood is allowed to remain in this impure condition the more severe will Rheumatism become. Gradually the muscles harden and lose their elasticity, the joints begin to stiffen, and frequently calcareous deposits form knots at the finger joints. There is just one way to CURE Rheumatism, and that is to cleanse the blood of the uric acid poison. S. S. S., by removing every particle of the cause and PURIFYING the blood, cures Rheumatism permanently. S. S. S. eliminates the uric acid because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers. It filters out every trace of the sour, inflammatory matter, cools the acid-heated blood, furnishes the material for multiplying the rich, nutritious corpuscles of the circulation, and by its fine tonic effects assists the system to rapidly overcome the effects of the disease. Special book on Rheumatism and medical advice free. S. S. S. is for sale at drug stores. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

BOSTON TEA PARTY REPEATED IN COAL

Alaskans Dump Cargo of the Canadian Product.

Seattle, Wash., May 5.—Boarding one of the vessels of the Alaska Steamship company which had just arrived with a cargo of Canadian coal, Alaskans at Cordova threw the coal overboard. Men of nearly every walk in life were in the party, which took complete possession of the vessel, leaving the authorities powerless to act. The determination of the people of Cordova has led the local federal officials to believe that a long struggle is before them, and Washington will be asked to put a stop to rioting, which they feel will follow.

Plans for the demonstration were made at a meeting where bitter protests were expressed against the refusal of the government to release the Alaska coal lands. It was decided to follow the example set by the revolutionary patriots and to dump every sack of Canadian coal brought to Cordova into the harbor. The feeling against paying the high prices demanded for foreign coal while native fuel in abundance lies untouched has been growing intense, and Alaskans inside and outside are greatly exercised over the manner in which their own resources remain locked up against them. The fuel thrown into the harbor was the property of the Copper River and Northwestern railroad.

most industrious pupil. Weekly meetings are held at Boundary castle, where character dancing from the severely classic of Isadora Duncan to a snake charming feature of Ruth St. Denis are practiced by a score of maids and matrons ranging in years from the debutante daughter of the president to Mrs. Henderson herself. The latter, who is a grandmother of several years' standing, gave a dance at the initial meeting quite in the Isadora Duncan form, except in the matter of hosiery and slippers, both being of light blue silk to match the generous and graceful drapery.

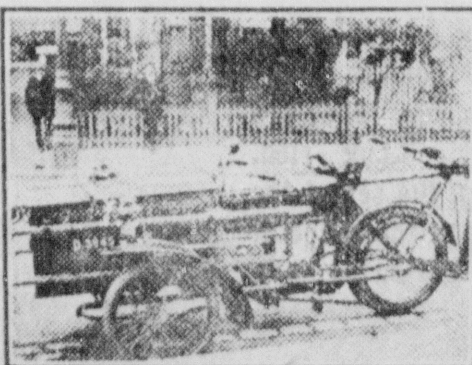

Miss Taft as yet has taken no active part in the character dancing, in which Mrs. Nicholas Longworth is quite expert, the latter having supplemented the weekly practice in the Henderson class by private instruction from a local teacher.

Mrs. Henderson asserts that by raising the dance to the dignity of a fine art and making its practice a rare personal accomplishment society will come to enjoy an evening spent in dancing with the intellectual pleasure derived from an evening of music or a play—something, she says, quite impossible in the average overcrowded, overheated ballroom.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Seymour, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy, After years of backache suffering, Days of misery, nights of unrest, The distress of urinary troubles, She finds relief and cure?

No reason why any Seymour reader

Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. William Abbott, 112 E. Second Street, Seymour, Ind., says: "I am a firm believer in the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills and I do not know that I would have done were it not for this remedy. My back was very lame and sore and for days at a time, I could hardly get about. The kidney secretions were unnatural and caused me no end of annoyance. Having heard and read so much about Doan's Kidney Pills, I finally decided to give them a trial and procured a supply. The results surprised and delighted me and by the time I had used three boxes of this remedy, every symptom of kidney complaint was removed."

Shaking Hands at French Funerals.

A most painful custom at French funerals is the posting at the exit door of the church wherein the ceremonies take place of the male head of the deceased person's family, the widower or the eldest son or brother, whose duty it is to shake hands with every person who has been present at the obsequies when once they are over and people are going away. It is not etiquette for the gentleman to speak to anybody, but if he is moved to tears his weeping is considered a most appropriate action.

Desperate Consorts.

Conscription is not popular in the Turkish empire. Mr. A. G. Adalo tells in "Regiding the Crescent" how he met at the little station of Sesched, between Jerusalem and the sea, a body of ferocious looking ruffians wearing handcuffs and under a strong guard—all deserters. "Some idea of the abhorrence in which these undisciplined tribesmen hold their military obligations may be gathered when it is mentioned that several of the party had actually burned out of their own eyes with quicklime so as to render themselves useless in the field."

Acting Versus Drawing.

To a group of friends Ellen Terry once said: "Acting is not like drawing. You make a line. If it is wrong you rub it out and make another. With acting that is impossible. There is no altering. It must stand. I often feel as if I must cry to the audience, 'Oh, that is wrong, not as I meant it to be; let me act that part or sentence over again.'"

Mrs. McCormick's Gold Anklet.

Mrs. Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, has set a style for society women. She possesses a gold anklet, especially made, worn so far only to the exceeding interest of a few intimate friends, who have been moved to a general discussion of this novelty. It is worn with low shoes. The anklet is not of the sort commonly pictured, a heavy hoop of metal resembling a handcuff. It is made of five tiny gold strands loosely caught together and forming a sort of ribbon, from which hang a number of gold bangles. There are no jewels set in it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 7, 1911

Uzziah, King of Judah, Humbled. 2 Chron. 26:8-21.

GOLDEN TEXT:—Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall. Prof. 16:18.

As Israel's penitence and God's pardon, according to Hos. xiv, the regular lesson for the day, can only be by the Holy Spirit, we will consider briefly that lesson, but give most of the time to the gospel lesson. It is as they shall look upon Him whom they have pierced, when they shall see Him coming in glory, that the Lord will pour upon the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem the Spirit of grace and of supplication, and there shall be a national mourning and a national forgiveness (Zech. xii, 9; xiii, 1). Then shall Hos. xiv be fulfilled, and after that He will pour out His Spirit upon all flesh (Joel ii, 27, 28).

It is only by the same Holy Spirit that believers in this present age can know the meaning of sin and righteousness and judgment by knowing Jesus Christ as the great sin bearer and by seeing in His sufferings how hateful sin is to God. Jesus Christ can only be a great Saviour to such as have seen themselves to be great sinners. Paul saw himself to be the chief of sinners, and to him Jesus Christ was such a great Saviour that he could think or talk of no one else. It will be just so with his people Israel, and after their conversion there will be a nation of Pauls to make Jesus Christ known to all the world.

In this present age if every believer was filled with the Spirit as our Lord Jesus would like us to be then the world that seeth not and knoweth not and cannot receive the Spirit of truth would see something of Jesus Christ in His people, and many would want to know Him. The Spirit always testifies of Christ, teaches things concerning Him, guides into all truth, shows us things to come and brings to remembrance what we have read or heard about Jesus (John xiv, 16, 17, 20; xv, 26; xvi, 7-13). He is specially "the Comforter" (parakalos) and is so called four times in these verses just referred to.

So we have a comforter in the presence of the Father and a Comforter dwelling in us, but more wonderful still, according to verses 17, 23, Father, Son and Holy Spirit all dwell in us if we are true believers and make our bodies their abode, or mansion, for the word translated "abode" in verse 23 is the very same word which is translated "mansion" in verse 2, and it is used nowhere else, although the verb from which the noun comes is used a great many times and is variously translated—abide, remain, dwell, continue.

It is impossible to fully grasp such a truth, and yet it is stated again and again in such words as these: "Christ liveth in me," "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith," "The life of Jesus made manifest in our body" (Gal. ii, 20; Eph. iii, 17; I Cor. iv, 10, 11). In verse 19 of our lesson He seems to say that He expects that the world will see Him in us. His life at the Father's right hand, where He ever liveth to make intercession for us, makes sure our life, and if we would more steadfastly behold Him and not people or circumstances we would be more manifestly changed into His likeness by the Spirit (I Cor. iii, 18). He longs to reveal Himself to us and through us, and He does this by His Spirit and His word (I Sam. iii, 21; Ps. cxix, 130; I Cor. iv, 6; John vi, 8-11). Thus only can we know the peace which He alone can give. He is the Prince of peace, the God of peace, the peace of God, our peace (Isa. ix, 6, 7; Heb. xiii, 20; Phil. iv, 6, 7; Col. iii, 15; Eph. ii, 14). By the blood of His cross He has made peace, and when we truly receive Him we have peace with God and may be filled with joy and peace in believing (Col. i, 20; Rom. v, 1; xv, 13), but the peace of God will only keep our hearts when we commit everything to Him in prayer and rely on Him to see to it.

As to neither being troubled nor afraid see also verse 1 and compare Matt. xxiv, 6; Luke xxiv, 38, and notice how He closed this discourse in John xvi, 33, with the assurance that we must expect tribulation. If any one else had said you shall have trouble, but do not be troubled, we would think them very unbalanced, but He was God (verse 1), and He is God and is unceasingly caring for us and making all things work together for our highest good, assuring us that all our afflictions are light and but for a moment comparatively and are all working for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory (Rom. viii, 28; I Cor. iv, 17, 18).

It is only in trial that we can really manifest that He is living in us, for almost any one can be lovely and pleasant when all goes well. May we learn to glory in all things that His power may rest upon us (I Cor. xii, 9, 10) and have always that whole hearted, unbounded confidence in Him that shall say, "Even so, just and true are Thy ways; I know that Thou art righteous; Thy way is perfect."

The House of the Whispering Pines

By ANNA
KATHARINE
GREEN

Copyright, 1910.
By Anna Katharine Rohlfis

PROLOGUE

English detective stories have their waxing and their waning in public favor; their American imitations hold the readers' attention for a time; French and German acuteness in the devising of original plots engages our interest until the tales of newer vidocqs are told, but Anna Katharine Green's detective stories, based on incidents of American life, are perennial bloomers. They know no permanent rivals in American liking.

In the writing of stories with originality of plot, skillful depiction of character, interest of incident, intricacy of mystery and boldness of denouement no foreign novelist can hope to compete for American favor with this American woman writer.

Read "The House of the Whispering Pines," a story of love and crime and mystery, told in her best vein. We warrant it to be one of her best and therefore one of the world's best.

CHAPTER I. THE HESITATING STEP.

THE moon rode high, but ominous clouds were rushing toward it—clouds heavy with snow. I watched these clouds as I drove recklessly, desperately over the winter roads. I had just missed the desire of my life, the one precious treasure which I coveted with my whole undisciplined heart, and, not being what you call a man of self restraint, I was chafed by my defeat far beyond the bounds I have usually set for myself.

I rode on, hardly conscious of my course, till the rapid recurrence of several well known landmarks warned me that I had taken the longest route home and that in another moment I should be skirting the grounds of the Whispering Pines, our country clubhouse. The season was over and the clubhouse closed, and when, the great stack of chimneys coming suddenly into view against the broad disk of the still unclouded moon, I perceived a thin trail of smoke soaring up from their midst I realized with a shock that there should be no such sign of life in a house I myself had closed, locked and barred that very day.

I was the president of the club and felt responsible. I turned in at the lower gateway. For reasons which I need not now state there were no bells attached to my cutter, and consequently my approach was noiseless. I was careful that it should be so; also careful to stop short of the front door and leave my horse and sleigh in the black depths of the pine grove, pressing up to the walls on either side. I was sure that all was not as it should be inside these walls.

Our clubhouse stands, as it may be necessary to remind you, on a knoll thickly wooded with the ancient trees I have mentioned. These trees—all pines and of a growth unusual and of an aspect well nigh hoary—extend only to the rear end of the house, where a wide stretch of gently undulating ground opens at once upon the eye, suggesting to all lovers of golf the admirable use to which it is put from early spring to latest fall. Now links as well as parterres and driveways were lying under an even blanket of winter snow. No other building stood with a half mile in any direction.

I felt the isolation as I stepped from the edge of the trees and prepared to cross the few feet of open space leading to the main door. In some moods I should have paused and thought twice before attempting the door, behind which in the dark lurked the unknown with its naturally accompanying suggestion of peril. But rage and disappointment, working hotly within me, had left no space for fear. Rather rejoicing in the doubtfulness of the adventure, I pushed my way over the snow until my feet struck the steps. Here instinct caused me to stop and glance quickly up and down the building either way. Not a gleam of light met my eye from the smallest scintillating pane. Was the house as soundless as it was dark?

I listened but heard nothing. I listened again and still heard nothing. Then I proceeded boldly up the steps and laid my hand on the door.

It was unlatched and yielded to my touch. Light or no light, sound or no sound, there was some one within. The fire which had sent its attenuated streak of smoke up into the moonlit air was burning yet on one of the many hearths within. I proceeded to enter and close the door carefully behind me. As I did so I cast an involuntary glance without. The sky was ink, and a few wandering flakes of the now rapidly advancing storm came whirling in, biting my cheeks and stinging my forehead.

Once inside I stopped short, possibly to listen again, possibly to assure myself as to what I had best do next. The silence was profound. Not a sound disturbed the great, empty building. My own footfall as I stirred seemed to wake extraordinary echoes. I had moved but a few steps, yet to my heightened senses the noise seemed loud enough to wake the dead. Instinctively I stopped and stood stock still. There was no answering cessation of movement—darkness, silence everywhere. Yet not quite absolute darkness. As my eyes grew accustomed to the place I found it possible to discern the outlines of the windows and locate the stairs and the arches where the side halls opened. I was even able to pick out the exact spot where the great antlers spread themselves above the hat rack, and presently the rack itself came into view, with its row of empty pegs, yesterday so full, today quite empty. That rack interested me, I hardly knew why, and regardless of the noise I made I crossed over to it and ran my hand along the wall underneath. The result was startling. A man's coat and hat hung from one of the pegs.

Would this hat and coat identify the intruder? I would strike a light and see. But this involved difficulties. The gas had been turned off that very morning, and I had no matches in my pocket. But I remembered where they could be found. I had seen them when I passed through the kitchen earlier in the day.

I began to move that way and presently came creeping back with a matchbox half full of matches in my hand. But I did not strike one then. I had just made a move to do so when the unmistakable sound of a door opening somewhere in the house made me draw back into as quiet and dark a place as I could find. This lay in the rear and at the right of the staircase, and as the sound had appeared to come from above it was the most natural retreat that offered. And a good one I found it.

I had hardly taken up my stand when the darkness above gave way to a faint glimmer and a step became audible coming from some one of the many small rooms in the second story, but slowly and with evident hesitation.

The light steadily increased with each lagging but surely advancing step. Then the uncertain step paused, and a sob came faintly to my ears, wrung from lips stiff with human anguish. The sound of the sigh struck shudderingly on my ear, followed by the renewal of the step and the almost immediate appearance on the stairs of a beautiful young girl of seventeen holding a candle in one hand and shielding her left cheek with the other.

Nothing could have prepared me for an encounter with this woman anywhere that night after what had passed between us and the wreck she had made of my life. But here, in a place so remote and desolate I had hesitated to enter it myself, what was I to think? How was I to reconcile so inconceivable a fact with what I knew of her in the past, with what I hoped from her in the future?

It was evident that some grisly fear, some staring horror, had met her in this strange retreat. Simple grief speaks with a different language from that which I read in her distorted features and tottering, slowly creeping form. What had happened above? She had escaped me to run upon what? My lips refused to ask, my limbs refused to move, and if I breathed at all I did so with such fierceness of restraint that her eyes never turned my way, not even when she had reached the lowest step and paused for a moment there, oscillating in pain or uncertainty. Her face was turned more fully toward me, and I had just begun to discern something in it besides its tragic beauty when she made a quick move and blew out the candle she held.

Then there came a crash, followed by the sound of flying feet. She had flung the candlestick out of her hand and was hurriedly crossing the hall. I thought she was coming my way and instinctively drew back against the wall. But she stopped far short of me, and I heard her groping about, then give a sudden spring toward the front door. It opened, and the wind sighed in. I felt the chill of snow upon my face and realized the tempest. Then all was quiet and dark again. She had slid quickly out, and the door had swung to behind her.

Another instant and I heard the click of the key as it turned in the lock, heard it and made no outcry, such the spell, such the bewilderment, of my faculties! Then I felt all lesser emotions give way to an anxiety which demanded immediate action, for the girl had gone out without wraps or covering for her head, and my experience of the evening had told me how cold it was. I must follow and find her and rescue her if possible from the snow.

Throwing myself against the door, I shook it violently. It was immovable. Then I flew to the windows. Their fastenings yielded readily enough, but not the windows themselves. One had a broken cord, another seemed glued to its frame, and I was still struggling with the latter when I heard a sound which lifted the hair on my head and turned my whole attention back to what lay behind and above me. There was still some one in the house. To find Carmel Cumberland alone in this desolation was a mystifying discovery to which I had found it hard enough to reconcile myself. But Carmel here in company with an unknown another at the very moment when I had expected the fruition of my own joy—ah, that was to open hell's door in my breast, a possibility too intolerable to remain unsettled for an instant.

Leaving the window, I groped my way along the wall until I reached the rack where the man's coat and hat had hung. Nothing now hung from the rack. The wall was free from end to end. She had taken these articles of male apparel with her; she had not gone forth into the driving snow unprotected, but—

I did not know what to think. The groping she had done had been in this direction. She was searching for this hat and coat (a man's hat, a derby, as I had been careful to assure myself at the first handling), and in them she had gone home as she had probably come, and there was no man in the case, or if there were—

The doubt drove me to the staircase. I began my wary ascent. I had not the slightest fear. I was too full of cold rage for that.

The arrangement of rooms on the second floor was well known to me. I understood every nook and corner and could find my way about the whole place without a light. I took but one precaution, that of slipping off my shoes at the foot of the stairs. I wished to surprise the intruder. I was willing to resort to any expedient to accomplish this. The matches I carried in my pocket would make this possible if once I heard him breathing. I held my own breath as I stole softly up and waited for an instant at the top of the stairs to listen. There was an awesome silence everywhere, and I was hesitating whether to attack the front rooms first or to follow up a certain narrow hall leading to a rear staircase when I remembered the thin line of smoke which, rising from one of the chimneys, had first attracted my attention to the house. In that was my clue.

I knew that there was but one room on this floor where a fire could be lit. It lay a few feet beyond me down the narrow hall I have just mentioned. Why had I trusted everything to my ears when my nose would have been a better guide? As I took the few steps necessary a slight smell of smoke became very perceptible, and, no longer in doubt of my course, I pushed boldly on and, entering the half open door, struck a match and peered anxiously about.

Emptiness here just as everywhere else, a few chairs, a dresser—it was a ladies' dressing room—some smoldering ashes on the hearth, a lounge piled up with cushions, but no person. The sound I had heard had not issued from this room, yet something withheld me from seeking further. I paused just inside the door and when the match went out in my hand remained shivering there in the darkness, a prey to sensations more nearly approaching those of fear than any I had ever before experienced in my whole life.

Why I did not know. There seemed to be no reason for this excess of feeling. I had no dread of attack. My apprehension was of another sort. Besides, any attack here must come from the rear—from the open doorway in which I stood—and my dread lay before me, in the room itself, which, as I have already said, appeared to be totally empty. I had forgotten the intruder. The interest which had carried me thus far had become lost in a fresher one of which the beginning and ending lay hidden within the four walls I now stared upon, unseeing. Not to see and yet to feel—did that make the horror? If so another lighted match must help me out. I struck one while the thought was hot within me and again took a look at the room.

I noted but one thing new, but that made me reel back till I was half-way into the hall. Then a certain dogged persistency I possess came to my rescue, and I re-entered the room at a leap and stood before the lounge and its pile of cushions. They were numerous—all that the room contained and more. Chairs had been stripped, window seats denuded and the whole collection disposed here in a set way which struck me as unnatural.

But at this point my second match went out.

Thoroughly roused now (you will say by what?), I felt my way out of the room and to the head of the staircase. I remembered the candle and candlestick I had heard thrown down on the lower floor by Carmel Cumberland. I would secure them and come back and settle these uncanny doubts. I had a hunt for the candlestick and a still longer one for the candle, but finally I recovered both and, lighting the latter, felt myself for the first time more or less master of the situation.

Rapidly regaining the room in which my interest was now centered, I set the candlestick down on the dresser and approached the lounge. Hardly knowing what I feared or what I expected to find, I tore off one of the cushions and flung it behind me. More cushions were revealed, but that was not all.

Escaping from the edge of one of them I saw a shiny tress of woman's hair. I gave a gasp and pulled off more cushions. Then I fell on my knees, struck down by the greatest horror which a man can feel. Death lay before me—violent, uncalled for, and the victim was a woman.

It was she—she indeed. Dead—Adelaide, the woman I had planned to wrong that very night and who had thus wronged me! For a moment I could take in nothing but this one astounding fact; then the how and why woke in maddening curiosity within me.

But beyond the ever accusing, protuberant stare those features told nothing, and, steeling myself to the situation, I made what observation I could of her condition and the surrounding circumstances, for this was my betrothed wife. Whatever my intentions, however far my love had strayed under the spell cast over me by her sister—the young girl who had just passed out—Adelaide and I had been engaged for many months. Our wedding day was even set.

But that was all over now—ended, as her life was ended, suddenly, incomprehensibly and by no stroke of God. Even the jewel on her finger was gone, the token of our betrothal. This was to be expected. She would be apt to take it off before committing herself to a fate that proclaimed me a traitor to this symbol. I should see that ring again. I should find it in a letter filled with bitter words. I would not think of it or of them now. I would try to learn how she had committed this act, whether by poison or—

It must have been by poison. No other means would suggest themselves to one of her refined sense. But if so why those marks on her neck, growing darker and darker as I stared at them?

My senses reeled as I scrutinized those marks. Small, delicate, but deadly, they stared upon me from either side of her white neck till nature could endure no more, and I tottered back against the farther wall, beholding no longer room nor lounge nor recumbent body, but a young girl's exquisite face, set in lines which belied her seventeen years and made futile any attempt on my part at self deception when my reason inexorably demanded an explanation of this death. As suicide it was comprehensible, as murder not, unless—

And it had been murder!

I sank to the floor as I fully realized this.

Church Trouble At Ft. Wayne
Taken to Court.

BOARD IN DANGER OF CONTEMPT

Successful Suit of Bishop Alender to Dissolve the Board of Trustees of St. Stephen's Being Disregarded, the Court Has Given the Recalcitrant Board One More Day in Which to Escape Contempt Proceedings.

South Bend, Ind., May 5.—The board of trustees of St. Stephen's Catholic church may be haled before the St.
Joseph circuit court for contempt because of the failure to give way to a new board appointed by Bishop Herman Joseph Alender, as ordered by Judge W. A. Funk several days ago.
Bishop Alender, who heads the diocese of Fort Wayne, filed suit to dissolve the old board by injunction and won. The trustees were ordered to retire from office and turn over the money, records and seal of the church to the new board.

Attorneys appeared in court and told Judge Funk his orders have not been obeyed. One more day was given the trustees in which to act. The trouble has practically disrupted the parish, which is one of the largest here. The Rev. John von Froelich is the priest, and he is on the side of Bishop Alender in the controversy.

"COP" GOES TO JAIL

Will Answer Charge of Conspiring to Kill Sheriff Later.

Gary, Ind., May 5.—After a jury had found him guilty of assault with intent to kill, seventy-one days in jail was the sentence that Pepko Boasich received in Judge McMahon's court.

Boasich, until his arrest four months ago, was a member of the Gary police department. He will also have to answer other charges, including one of conspiracy to murder
Thomas Grant, sheriff of Lake county.
A third indictment, which includes Mayor Knotts and other city officials, involves Boasich.

Boasich was called "Gary's toy cop."
When appointed to the force Boasich, who is a foreigner, distinguished himself by ordering a uniform that duplicated Chief Martin's. When that official remonstrated he was told to "go chase himself." Armed with a gun, club and huge knife, Boasich soon began to make life miserable for several Gary citizens. After several assaults, including two on newspaper men, he got after Sheriff Grant on election day.

NEW ASSESSMENT

Will Have to Be Made at Hartford
City Owing to Fire.

Hartford City, Ind., May 5.—Frank Hudson, assessor of Licking township, sacrificed his assessment sheets, but he saved his two children from fire that destroyed his home. The county will bear the expense of reassessing
the township, which includes Hartford City.

Hudson's records were completed and he had finished assembling them at his home when fire broke out, and he removed his children with difficulty. Six deputies will go to work at once reassessing the township.

The Greenleaf Trial Postponed.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 5.—A babe has blocked all proceedings in the case of George Greenleaf, whose trial for the murder of Ralph Conover, eighteen months ago, was to have come up. The babe was born to Mrs.
Conover, the defense's leading witness in the case, and it was the expected arrival of the infant that caused the court to postpone the trial until the next term of court.

Didn't Follow It Up.

Columbus, Ind., May 5.—"Your money or your life," commanded a footpad when he leveled a revolver at the head of Homer Phillips, son of former Sheriff James W. Phillips of Garden City. Instead of coming across with money, young Phillips promptly knocked the robber down and fled.
The footpad escaped.

New Move in Schill Case.

Brookville, Ind., May 5.—The first degree murder indictment against William Schill has been quashed, and a special session of the grand jury has returned a second degree indictment.
Schill was accused of striking his father over the head with a burning coal oil lamp, so injuring him that he died ten days later.

Didn't Hear the Train.

Greensburg, Ind., May 5.—George
Ray, aged about forty, was instantly killed at New Point, eight miles east of this city. Escaping steam from a freight engine, around which he walked to cross the track, drowned
the noise of an approaching passenger train, and he stepped directly in front of it.

Lad Drowned in Drain.

Kokomo, Ind., May 5.—Forest Tyner, aged four, son of Early Tyner, stumbled into a private drain which had been abandoned a few days ago because it had filled with water, and drowned.
